All of these can be bitmapped (read: displayed as an array of black and white pixels), which is the default settings for almost all programs. Q: Editable Gridview Row's Click event I want to have a gridview on which i want the row to become editable in clicking on it for the first time and after editing or cancelling the save of the changes to the database it should get the focus back again and not be editable. I have used this `grdTemp.RowEditing += new GridViewEditRowEventHandler(Row_Editing);` but it is not working. I need to cancel the edit on clicking outside. A: Try this to cancel the edit in your Row_Editing event: `private void Row_Editing(object sender, GridViewEditRowEventArgs e) { e.CancelEdit = true; GridViewRow row = (GridViewRow)(sender as GridView).Parent; ((TextBox)(row.Cells[2].Controls[0])).Focus(); }` The present invention relates to a wedge anchor for supporting loads, especially for use in buoyancy compensator flotation devices of submarines. It is known to provide wedge-shaped anchors with a leg portion extending laterally out from the wedge portion of the anchor and suitable fastening means for attachment of the legs to a support, such as the hull of the submarine. It is also known to provide buoyancy compensator flotation devices (BCF) for submarines which are constructed to be removable and which may be filled with a buoyant liquid such as water to compensate for a significant weight loss of the submarine. Such a buoyancy compensator provides a cavity in the submarine hull which may be filled with an amount of liquid as determined by the specific volume of the cavity and the desired buoyancy of the submarine. In a typical arrangement, the buoyancy compensator may be located in a cavity in the lower pressure hull of the submarine and include a generally hemispherical shell defining a primary chamber which may be filled with water. An inner chamber formed by a "seal wall" is located within the primary chamber and contains ballast material, for example, styrofoam balls, or is filled with ballast material. The inner chamber is adapted to be filled with a compressed gas from a
