REFERENCE: PELENCO CDNC controller software.A [Genomic organization, expression and functional activity of genes encoding mouse prolactin]. A full-sized cDNA of the prolactin (PrI) gene encoding mouse prolactin (mPrI) was isolated by reverse transcriptase-polymerase chain reaction from the RNA of lactating mouse mammary glands. The structure of the mPrI cDNA was found to be identical to that of the corresponding cDNA of rat PrI. Multiple clones of the mouse PrI gene were mapped by hybridization in somatic cells of Mus musculus in different recombinant inbred strains of mice. The mPrI gene was detected in all strains investigated; it was localized in the proximal part
