Endless Action RPG. An action RPG that focuses on thrill and joy. The game is a fusion of MMORPG (Massively Multiplayer Online Role-Playing Game) and action RPG, and the main feature of this game is a movement based turn-based combat system, where the battle will be fought in real time. To enjoy this thrilling action game, we have prepared the following series of functions: - All monsters and enemy characters appear on-screen, allowing a player to easily observe all the situation in all directions. - The game provides a comfortable and advanced UI that makes every process easy to understand. - Players are granted freedom of movement as they freely navigate the vast world and gain access to your strongholds. - Players can freely develop their own character as they use a variety of equipment to become a strong warrior, a magic user, or a main character with strong melee capabilities. - Players can participate in a new turn-based system combat system, where they will have battles with other players or monsters as they freely decide the timing for their movement and attack. - Players can freely talk with other characters in the world and can ask them questions. Also, to make the game more balanced and more challenging, we have applied the following changes: - The speed of your character's movement will be changed depending on your ability, so that no character can move faster than any other character. - Weapon effectiveness will be changed depending on your ability and level, and certain weapons will be more powerful for you. - At the beginning of the game, other players are more difficult to defeat, but after a certain number of battles, they will become more balanced. The php memcache does not have an option to control the amount of RAM it loads. For example, a server I am working on has a RAM of 6GB. My settings: ----------------------- PORT : 6379 CACHE_OPTS : [] MAX_CONNECTIONS : 4096 BACKEND : memcache SESSION_OPTIONS : [] LEASING : no-lru SEED : pid is random What I've found from googling this for a couple of hours was that PHP memcache module uses a memory profiler to limit the amount of memory php-memcache is supposed to load. What is this memory profiler, whether it's some settings I have to define, or what is the best way to optimize memory footprint of memcache? A: The key with setting the amount of memory PHP memcache will use with time-based behavior is to check what time stamp it will use in a doubling fashion. This effectively causes your memory profiler to never count for the first time that amount of RAM that memcache is using. That would give you something like: memcache_exists(time() - 1800); This way, your memory profiler never shows the time stamp corresponding to your memory usage and you don
