The "Hybrid Player Model" uses data from opponents, as well as your own player data, to simulate the player's movement during encounters. It also features Player Intelligence, which improves player accuracy and responsiveness on the ball. The goalkeepers' are more aware of your movements, while improved ball control leads to more accurate and intense ball movement for open-play control. Check out the full video summary below! This is just the beginning of the FIFA World Cup developments, and we are really excited about the impact this is going to have on the FIFA Franchise. We are taking this very seriously and are working non-stop on the next release. Since the release of FIFA 20, we have received valuable feedback and suggestions from the community. FIFA was created for players, the players who have provided us with this feedback, as well as the creators and gamers who love this franchise. We will be making significant adjustments to the game based on the suggestions we've received. The below changes will be arriving in FIFA 21 on the 19th June, 2020, and we are hoping they will be a big success. Team Ball Size v2 Team Ball Size v1.5 Both Team Ball Size v1.5 and v2 have been adjusted to the nature of the game that we were playing with in FIFA 20. With a smaller ball, we noticed that we were able to control the ball better with our outside-the-foot passes, while the size of the ball affected our handling and passing. With the updated Team Ball Size v2, we're able to maintain the directional control of the ball, while ensuring the ball feel more natural in play. Player Intelligence v2.1 Players' actions are now more predictable when using Precision Dribbling Balance. In addition, certain tweaks were made in order to improve the Balance. Aerial Dribble Dif As the new aerial dribble mechanics for FIFA 21 build on an entirely new control scheme, we've tried to make the transition feel much smoother for those players who are new to dribbling. To this end, we've reduced the eccentricity of the passes and made the transitions more fluent. FIFA Ultimate Team
