----- Welcome to a universe between imagination and the real world, where your work, your decisions, are the only obstacles that separate you from success! A popular board game for kids and adults, Boon is a wonderful game of strategy and experimentation. One day, people went out into the desert looking for water and food. They have to compete with one another to survive. Everyone's life is precious in this world. As the people have less food to eat and water to drink, some of them have to raise the animals and the pots to find food. It's a very pleasant place, full of nature. You can also jump on the horse, climb the mountain, swim in the river, or simply enjoy a slow walk. However, everything is associated with your requirements for food and water. The environment is full of animals, and some of them may be useful for food or water. After a long time, food and water became more scarce, and people became increasingly desperate for survival. Many of them gathered in one place and fought with one another to see who would get the last piece of food. The day is full of chaos, and no one knows what will happen next. -----

Acetaminophen (APAP) toxicity is associated with the development of acute liver failure, which is a rare but life-threatening condition. We sought to determine the incidence of APAP-related liver failure in the United States and to compare it with non-APAP-related cases. From 1996 to 2000, the Food and Drug Administration submitted all cases of acute liver failure that occurred in the United States to the National Toxicology Program. Cases were included if there was an increase in bilirubin >or=3 mg/dL and coagulopathy, and the etiology was judged to be APAP or an alternative cause by a liver expert. Cases from the initial five-year period were compared to cases reported in the following four years. In the 5-year period, there were 177 cases of liver failure due to APAP. Forty-five cases (26%) were due to other drugs, 50 cases (29%) were due to alternate causes, and 72 cases (43%) were unknown. The overall incidence of APAP-related acute liver failure in the United States was 0.69 per million adult population per year, a rate that is similar to that reported in Europe. In comparison, the annual incidence of non-APAP-related acute liver failure was 0.65 per million. This difference was not statistically significant (p=0.7). ### What's new in Mightier:

Thing.io Mightier (the name stands for Mighty Acts, Little Words) is a community-based, democratic initiative in the UK. It is aimed at children, and runs weekly workshops within local schools and community groups (‘things’) and is organised by a network of local youth-led project leaders and volunteers. It is also led by some of the most active youth organisers in the country - a recent UK Youth Survey ranked ZieSonni number one in the UK, while Mightier was ranked sixth. The central program is a ‘paper bill’ that is designed to help a community ‘save the world’ from climate change. It details a solution involving the community earning money to pay for renewable energy and education, and community members can work together to put these changes in motion. History The aim of Mightier was to build a “community manifesto” after a well-attended conference on climate change at the University of Cambridge, where the work of many communities and projects were discussed and invested into the creation of Mightier. At the conference there was a call from Al Gore to work together and apply the ideas of science and community at speed. Youth conceived the idea and worked with youth organisers ZieSonni and Vinaya to bring Mightier to life. They knew that young people in the generation that had grown up with the internet were the natural group to lead this movement and to create things that would be exemplary and “needed”. Climate Coalition The flagship of Mightier is a “Climate Action Coalition” named "The UK Climate Action Coalition" and headed by the four main leaders of the community, Arram Van Bennekhof, George Clarke, ZieSonni and Vinaya Bagat. Arram is a 17 year old iRobot and Robotics technology enthusiast and an SAIL (Schools for Agile Innovation for Leadership ) TDA alum. George is a 19-year-old Oxfam youth trust leader (he won a Imagine Cup final with mightier last year). ZieSonni is a 21-year-old social entrepreneur involved in high-tech social entrepreneurship and consumerism as well as social activism, and Vinaya is a 19-year-old self-identifies as feminist, organiser, public speaker, and writer. The group met for the first time after the Cambridge conference and has since worked together to create
